CAMBODIA'S DEDICATION TO RICE

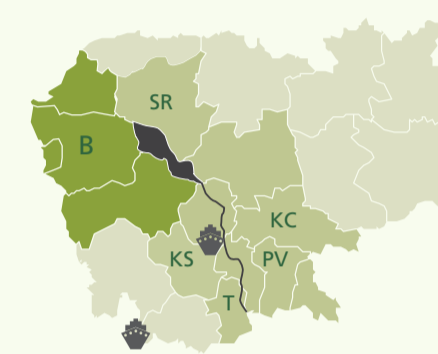

The impressive growth of Cambodian rice exports is based on a dedicated and vibrant private sector, supported by the Royal Cambodian Government, international development institutions and strong commitment found along all sections of the supply-chain. Foreign and domestic investment, obtaining quality and food safety certifications, compliance with international level Cambodian Rice Standards, and an increasing availability of high-value, premium quality seeds all contribute to the admirable progress of Cambodia's rice sector. Farmers, processors, exporters and the government cooperate in close consultation with international buyers to provide quality rice that receives global recognition.

Agriculture is Cambodia's most important sector and Rice is its most important produce. 71% of the population depends on agriculture. Rice cultivation covers 84% of agricultural land and engages 80% of the farmers.

Cambodia is fortunate to grow among the world's highest value fragrant Jasmine rice, which won now three years in a row the World's Best Rice award in 2012, 2013 and 2014.
